HERE COMES THE RIVER... thanks to the 4½ inches of rain which has drenched Carmel Valley in less than a week, turning hillsides to deep emerald green and filling both San Clemente and Los Padres dams to overflowing. Here the river surges past Salsipuedes towards the Robles del Rio Bridge, a good omen for the opening of steelhead season. For more about our unusually wet November, see story on page 17. (photo by George T.C. Smith)

To the Editor:

TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor:

We wish to thank you for your consistently good coverage of our activities in the Cypress Swim Club. Your articles are encouraging in a great way to our girls in their efforts.

We are especially grateful to George T.C. Smith for his excellent pictures and the girls know that "Smitty" will always be there rooting for them. As parents of a member of this Club, our appreciation is boundless.

Sincerely,
MR. AND MRS. ROLAND BRANDLY

Dear Editor:

I am sick of the "CVPOA" telling the Board of Supervisors how to think and what to do. They do not represent the majority of homeowners in Carmel Valley. The people who have sent in their money to join "CVPOA" hardly even know—much less care—what that group is up to. I'll bet the majority of the members are older retired people that don't even own property here in the Valley floor. They join in any old thing for a bit of excitement. They fight against all homeowners or business people that are working to make a living and minding their own business.

Take the Flood Zoning thing. How many own land on the creeks or river? We fought that monster for over two years and fought it down. Now the Asp has raised its head again. "CVPOA" wants it—so the leaders say. I want a list of the members that want it, where their land is and their reason for wanting it. This is a letter to them to write to me. I found out last time this went to the Board that all people living on my canyon road—and we all owned property on the creek, were against it. Some of us work for a living and can't be up and down the road getting signatures against this sort of thing all the time.

The Supervisors know we don't want it and they know why. I don't feel I'm even represented any more down here. What does a City Lawyer like Poyner know about shoveling mud, hauling water, rebuilding bridges and clearing the creek, paying his taxes and then losing the use of his land because a group like the "CVPOA" need another Cause to rally round? I took a long list of reasons to the Board of Supervisors last time this Flood Zone thing came up—Mr. Smith has them. Mr. Branson knows them. Mr. Church and Mr. Atteridge are not for zoning. It wouldn't help on insurance. We never even would qualify for national insurance if it went through. So what does the "CVPOA" have on its wee mind? What ever it is, it doesn't take a giant brain to figure it out.

The hearing was set for Nov. 28th. Now, you know what? The "CVPOA" who had requested the hearing again—want it rescheduled 60 days later. Mr. Branson might be out due to ill health and they want Poyner there—a city lawyer who can be swung to their side, as they are city-sort of people.

Who is running this darned world, anyhow? The Supervisors? The people the Supervisors are supposed to be representing or the "CVPOA"?

Why is it such a hassle just trying to live—pay your taxes and keep yourself from having a gigantic headache? Can't there be any worthwhile project the "CVPOA" can find to do to keep itself busy and happy beside meddling in someone's affairs? Why is it when a few people band together, they get so vocal and make such a mess around a town? They are like sheep. A few here and there aren't too bad, but you get a flock of them together and they sure stomp on all the grass and mess on the rest of it so the majority around can't even breathe. We try to ignore them but like sheep, they are noisy and smelly in a flock and find their ways to really upset the quiet ones around.

How about the "CVPOA" banding together and keeping the streets cleaned up, painting fences and old houses—planting flowers—cutting dead wood and poison oak from the creek beds—fighting soil erosion on their own property and stopping air pollution two ways—by not driving their cars so much and by not making so much noise vocally.

I'm sure that there are others around town who can suggest some other worthwhile projects for the "CVPOA" to do if this isn't enough to keep them out of the hair of the majority of landowners in Carmel Valley.

Now, if the Supervisors would enforce the laws on the books they have already put there, they would have their hands full. Or if it isn't their job to do this—find out who's job it is and see that it's done. If someone up-creek is doing something that is wrong and will hurt your property—there are laws that will handle that. There are trespass laws—such as "No person has the right to enter upon the lands of another, even though the water running through such property have been stocked by the State. Thus if both banks of a stream are privately owned, the owners, or occupants can keep you from entering or angling. In most instances where lands border a stream with different owners on each side, ownership extends to the center or to one side of the stream. Consequently, the stream itself is also private, and an unauthorized entry thereon, even in a boat or canoe, would constitute a trespass. Furthermore, when such conditions exist the owner or occupants have the right to fence off the stream and keep the public out. The same is true where the stream runs through the lands of but one owner!

Now, if the "CVPOA" wants to see the whole of the Carmel River fenced—as the River Ranch is—just keep on hustling us down here on the creeks and river. Because that's just what you're going to get.

The local officers of the California Association of Highway Patrolmen would like to take this opportunity to thank the citizens and organizations of Monterey County for their generous support of Proposition 16, which was intended to provide pay parity for Highway Patrolmen.

We were happy to note that statewide, no one, not the press, radio, television or otherwise, said that Highway Patrolmen don't deserve to be paid the same as other police officers. The opposition to Proposition 16 was based, primarily, on the fact that they didn't like the idea of putting the salary setting procedure in the constitution nor of eliminating the Governor's veto power. Almost every newspaper in Monterey County editorially supported the idea of equal pay for patrolmen although many could not support the proposition as it was written.

In our quest for an equitable wage we would like to ask one more favor of the people of Monterey County, regardless of your vote on Proposition 16. The budget for the coming fiscal year will be prepared during the month of December. Our salaries are, as they have been in past years, in the hands of our Governor, Ronald Reagan.

Now, while there is still time, take a minute to write a postcard or letter to Governor Reagan. Express your support of the Highway Patrol and its men by demanding that he include funds in his budget to provide equal pay for Highway Patrolmen.

Your letter may make the difference.

THE ORGANIC GARDENER

... in Carmel Valley

By LEE HALL

VIRGIN GROUND

VIRGIN GROUND doesn't mean land that has never been farmed by man; it means land that has never been farmed by man or Nature. Nothing grows on it. Rain falls on it and runs off, or sits like water in a tub. In the dry season it turns to a rock-like surface or turns to dust and blows away. If you have a bit of land like this that you want to grow something on, read on.

If there is no rush to put the land in cultivation, six inches of mulch should be put over the ground and left. Mulch can consist of compost (described earlier), kitchen scraps, manure, newspapers weighted down with a little dirt or rocks, grass trimmings, leaves, seaweed, sawdust, etc. In six months the ground will be changed enough to start working in the mulch.

If the land is needed as soon as possible, as before, the six inches of compost should be put on the ground. A cup of wood ashes or slaked lime per square foot should be added. A cup of phosphate rock (or ½ cup of super phosphate) per square foot should be added, and the ground turned over with a digging fork or rototiller. (For a yard of 50 x 100 or larger the rototiller will pay for itself many times over.)

If raw mulch (anything but completed compost) is used the turning under should be done in the fall for the next spring planting. More mulch should be added as it accumulates, on top of the plot, especially leaves and small-diameter pruning (branches of pencil size diameter should be cut up for the compost heap). This added on mulch should be turned under at least three weeks before planting, because some mulch will heat up during decomposition.

AT THE END of the first growing season all garden residue, corn stalks, bean and pea vines, carrot tops, flower stalks, etc., should be turned under. They should not be left on top of the ground because, in addition to being unsightly, the residue provides a wintering over home for harmful insects. If the gardener does not want to turn under the residue, it should be made into compost.

Let's consider that the first year's crop is harvested, fairly disappointing because the plants were not too vigorous, growth was spotty and chemical fertilizer and possibly insecticides had to be used. Why should the second year be better?

First of all, the organic materials put into the soil continue to decompose. Woody material such as corn stalks, corn cobs, larger twigs, weed stalks and so forth will not decompose in one year. They will continue to break down, bacteria will absorb the broken down organics, they will reproduce and die and add their decomposition materials to the soil.

Earth worms will multiply, eat the organics, add their rich "castings" to the soil and the fertilizer of their decomposing bodies as they die. The fall rains will be caught and held by the now absorbent soil and the moisture will be used to assist the decomposition of the organic material. Bacteria will be breaking down rock minerals. The gardener looking out at his now barren garden will know that Nature is doing his work for him in preparing the ground for a much richer second year.

BOB WOOD REPORTS...

A REGULAR COLUMN BY BOB WOOD,
ASSEMBLYMAN - 34TH DISTRICT

We in the Legislature may be faced with growing problems raised by some people which require students to remain in high school until they either obtain a diploma or reach the age of 18.

This comes about through many 16-year-olds and 17-year-olds who are way ahead of their elders. Outside the framework of the law, many have been leaving school, either as drop-outs or as truants.

We are facing this issue in the Legislature as a bill revising the compulsory attendance laws comes before us for consideration.

The author of the proposed legislation says his measure does not eliminate compulsory schooling for those between 16 and 18 years of age, but he thinks almost all the things he's proposing actually do occur now.

The author is suggesting that students in this age bracket may be exempt from compulsory schooling if they do the following things:

1. Attend a regional occupational center for job training.
2. Attend graded classes at a community college where they could comprise no more than one percent of the total enrollment.
3. Pass a basic skills test developed by the State Department of Education after getting parental permission to take the test.
4. Enroll in what is called a continuation or part time school.

Some think that a youngster of that age, when he's not compelled to go to regular school (when the choice is his) is going to have a different attitude.

Unfortunately, school attendance can be made compulsory, but school learning can not be. So some of our classrooms are loaded with youth who have no wish to be there, whose aim is not to learn but to escape from learning. Such a classroom, of course; we all know is not a favorable learning environment.

One educator has pointed out that the community still has the obligation to ask its educational agencies to provide an environment that young people up through adulthood will want to stay in, and accept.

Another educator reported that one out of five students in the 16-18 year bracket were either dropping out of school or taking extra credits so they could graduate early. He feels potential high school drop-outs might be identified and assisted in the elementary grades.

Another school authority says he is opposed to compulsory laws for education for the same reason he favors elective physical education. In other words allowing students to take physical education if they so desire and forget it if they don't care to.

With these various arguments, one can see what we in the Legislature will be up against in determining what is right and what is wrong in the proposed legislation. I doubt if a decision will be made this session.

Enuf for now...

More shops open in Northridge

Northridge Center, located at Boronda Road and U.S. Highway 101 in Salinas, will add more shops to those in its fully-enclosed, climate-controlled mall this week.

The multi-million dollar shopping complex, largest regional retail development between San Jose and Santa Barbara, is comprised of two major department stores, J.C. Penny Co. and The Emporium, and eventually, 50 shops and services in its enclosed mall.

Developers of the Center, located just off Highway 101 at Boronda Road in Salinas, are Sutter-Hill Ltd. and The Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co.

PROPOSITION 20

Where do we go from here?

By PAT GRIFFITH

LAST WEEK'S PASSAGE of Proposition 20, the Coastline Initiative, has so far raised more questions than it has answered for the Monterey Peninsula.

The new law tightens controls over development along the coastline by establishing a California Coastal Zone Conservation Commission and six regional commissions.

Virtually all development within 1000 yards of the shore, except for improvements under $7500 to existing single family homes, will require a permit from the regional commission before construction may begin.

To a lesser extent, development within the new "coastal zone" -- an area extending inland five miles or to the top of the nearest coastal mountain range, whichever is closer -- may also be affected.

Regional commissions are to prepare comprehensive plans for the "long-range conservation and management of the natural resources of the coastal zone." These regional plans will be put into one comprehensive coastal plan which will be adopted and sent to the State Legislature no later than Dec. 1, 1975.

Among some of the major questions raised by the initiative are these:

1. Who will sit on the regional commissions and the overall statewide commission?

The initiative spells out a precise formula for representation. Monterey County will be part of the Central Coast Regional Commission along with San Mateo and Santa Cruz counties. There will be eight elected members: one city councilman and one county supervisor from each county, one representative from the Association of Monterey Bay Area Governments (AMBAG) and one representative from the Association of Bay Area Governments (ABAG).

These members will be chosen by the board or council on which they sit.

There will also be eight public members on the regional commission, to be chosen by Governor Ronald Reagan, the Senate Rules Committee and the Speaker of the Assembly.

In turn, the California Coastal Zone Conservation Commission will be composed of one representative selected by each regional commission and six representatives of the public, the latter to be appointed by the Governor, the Senate Rules Committee and the Speaker of the Assembly.

This still leave the question -- who will these individuals be?

2. What is the precise area within Monterey County which will be included in the coastal permit zone?

The initiative says that each regional commission shall adopt a map delineating the precise boundaries of the permit area within 60 days after its first meeting.

Although it defines the permit area as "that portion of the coastal zone lying between the seaward limit of the jurisdiction of the state and 1,000 yards landward from the mean high tide line, it also says that "if any portion of any body of water which is not subject to tidal action lies within the permit area, the body of water together with a strip of land 1,000 feet wide surrounding it shall be included."

As one example, this raises the question of whether or not the lagoon area of the Carmel River, rather than the tideline, is going to be the point from which the 1,000-yard permit zone is measured along that section of coastline.

3. What will happen to the value of both developed and undeveloped land within the permit area?

While those directly concerned are adopting a "wait and see" attitude, the consensus is that land values on unimproved property will drop, at least initially, while the value of existing structures will rise.

4. What happens to the 120-unit Monterey Dunes subdivision at the mouth of the Salinas River on which construction is just starting?

This project, recently given final design approval at an unprecedented special meeting of the Monterey County Planning Commission, may be affected by a section of the initiative which states that no permit will be needed from the regional commission if the county has issued a building permit and if the developer has a vested interest.

But vested rights are defined as having started construction and incurred substantial liabilities for work and materials before April 1 of this year.

Both attorneys who supported and opposed Proposition 20 expect that this provision will be quickly challenged in court. And the educated guess is that this will likely be thrown out, with the effective date for establishing "vested rights" becoming Nov. 8, the day after the election, or the date on which the regional commission is formally established.

5. What does all this mean for development of the Odello ranch?

Possibly very little. Possibly a great deal, depending upon the precise limits established for the "permit zone" and whether or not there is any reassessment of land values because of the permit zone.

County Counsel William Stoffers predicted this week that Proposition 20 would have relatively little effect on county departments as such, other than the fact that the planning department will now be required to send tentative maps for subdivisions within the five-mile coastal zone to the regional commission for their review.

"This really doesn't affect the county, although it may affect property owners," Stoffers said.

"Of course, any person who wants to develop property within the permit area will have to get two types of permits, one from the appropriate county body, and one from the regional commission.

"But as far as the county is concerned, we will continue to issue our permits without any relation to the state body."

STOFFERS WAS UNCERTAIN about the affect on the Odello redevelopment proposal.

"I don't know for sure because I don't know where Odello is in regard to the ocean," he explained. "My offhand guess is that the western part may be in the permit area, but that hasn't been determined."

He said he assumes that the Monterey Dunes project can proceed on schedule because it has a building permit from the county.

County Planning Director Ed DeMars said his department is ready and able to send off maps of subdivisions proposed for the coastal zone "only we don't know where to send them. There is no commission, no office at this point."

DeMars foresees that the regional commission is going to have to spell out very clearly just how much land is to be included in the permit area at the mouth of both the Salinas and Carmel Rivers.

In general, DeMars said, he thinks that Proposition 20 "is in the same vein of what we're trying to do in our Tri-County Report."

He doubts that it will produce anywhere near the additional workload on the department as what has resulted from the State Supreme Court's environmental impact ruling in the Friends of Mammoth case.

DeMars said that various amendments to the 1970 Environmental Quality Act are now under consideration by the legislature, most of which would require more widespread preparation of environmental impact studies. One proposal, he said, would require the county to prepare an environmental report on virtually all zoning and use permit matters, excluding only individual grading and building permits.

"Right now we're spending a lot of time on this," he said.

THE ONLY COUNTY OFFICIAL who will inevitably be right in the middle of Proposition 20's aftermath is County Assessor Donald Stewart.

Stewart said the possible impact of Proposition 20 on property values was discussed at a meeting of the State Association of County Assessors in Sacramento Tuesday, and a committee was appointed to study its ramifications.

"At the moment we're taking the position that all we can do is wait and see," Stewart said.

"I would guess that there will be a temporary adverse effect on vacant land and probably some increase in value on improved properties."

But this won't be known, he emphasized, until several pieces of property are sold within the permit area.

"While it is very possible that there will be re-evaluation of property along the coast by our office, it depends on what the sales are. If there are no transfers (of property) before March, for instance, we may just sit tight for another year."

"We definitely won't do anything on an upward assessment basis without strong indications that this is what is happening."

As for the Odello property, Stewart said he "wouldn't even hazard a guess" about a change, upward or downward, in assessed value. "That would be considered along with everything else as we see what happens."

In any event, he noted, no change in assessment will become effective before July 1, 1973.

Since the election Stewart said he has received one letter and one phone call from owners of unimproved coastal properties who want a reduction in their assessments.

PLANNING COMMISSIONER CHARLES KRAMER, one of the leaders in the effort to pass Proposition 20, said this week that he feels that the supervisors and planning commissioners "should proceed as we do now and go ahead in our normal fashion on zoning matters."

If a developer receives a building permit before the regional commissions are functioning, Kramer said, it will be up to the individual landowner to decide if he can legally proceed with construction.

"I hope we can get some clarification soon from the State Attorney General on this," Kramer said.

As far as the Odello development is concerned, Kramer said he assumes that "since it hasn't progressed as far as a building permit, the developers would hesitate to start work until it was approved by the regional permit board."

Kramer predicted that Proposition 20 "will be very valuable to the county. It is something we've needed for a long time. It is going to protect an asset of the county and of private owners."

"I would hope that the regional commissions proceed rapidly so that construction that is not detrimental to the coastline can proceed," he added.

Kramer is confident the regional commissions will be able to draw up "a worthwhile plan" for the coastal zone "if we get the appointment of people of high standing and intellect to them."

He emphasized that he himself is not in the running for an appointment.

"I would like to stay on the planning commission," he said. "For me it is the proper thing. I think I can best serve Monterey County by staying where I am."

ATTORNEY MYRON ETIENNE, JR., who frequently represents major landowners in hearings before the county, said he doubts that Proposition 20 will delay or change anything for the Monterey Dunes subdivision.

Etienne said he doubts that courts will sustain the April 1 date for determining "vested rights" because "that is taking property without compensation."

If the effective date is changed to Election Day, Nov. 7, he said the Dunes development would probably be in compliance.

"In general, I'd say Proposition 20 is going to cause large landowners problems because there is that type of environmentalist who feels that no construction is the answer," Etienne said.

"It all depends on who is on the commissions. I feel the rule of reason should be followed, and that there is room for conservation and desirable development also."

Carmel realtor Lois Renk, president of the Carmel Board of Realtors, is concerned about Proposition 20 from two aspects: its impact on the local property owner, and its broad implications regarding the right to own and use private property.

"The first thing it means is delay," she said. "First of all the machinery has to be set up for selecting and appointing the commissions, and all the probable protests there will be about that."

"Then after the permit zone is established, the first permits will be granted slowly because they will set precedents."

"I would guess that a permit for a vacant lot in a generally developed area, such as a lot on Scenic Drive, would be the first type of thing they'd permit."

"But anything else is going to be subject to delays of untold months."

"EVERYBODY IN THE STATE is an environmental expert, and who's to say whose opinion is valid? Whose environmental impact study are you going to use?"

Ms. Renk said her office has advised clients who own individual building lots along the coast that they don't know just what the effect of Proposition 20 will be.

For developed property, she said, "our feedback will come after we get a few offers."

She noted, however, that in Carmel property along the ocean already commands a "premium price."

In the Yankee Point section of the Highlands, she predicts that there will be a slowdown in the sale of undeveloped lots "until it is known just what the machinery is going to be and what kinds of permits will be issued."

All this, she said, will hurt the property owner who has to pay taxes on land he may not be able to use.

"For the person who needs his money from his land, it's a disaster," she said. "For a person who bought land to bank it, it means a delay. It could be a delay forever."

This, Ms. Renk feels, raises the much larger issue of who has the right to decide what can be done with private property.

"It is a whole new concept if the government can take private property without compensation. . . . It's a totally different switch in our philosophy about the private ownership of land and being able to use it as you wish. . . . This is the first time since zoning itself was proposed as an abatement of nuisance that anything as drastic as this has been proposed."

At present, she said, the California Real Estate Association has a full-time legislative committee looking into all aspects of Proposition 20 and its implications for the future.

"This is something we are all going to have to live with," she added. "It was passed by the people, and by a big margin. So for now, we will just do our best to help each individual find out where he stands."

A BYPASS ROUTE around the Village that would cut north from Laurel Drive and run along the airstrip won approval from the Carmel Valley Village Study Advisory Committee Monday afternoon.

By a 5-1-1 vote, committee members agreed to recommend the northern bypass as the best way to route through traffic around the Village whenever Carmel Valley Road can no longer accommodate all the cars.

According to the County Road Department, that time is at least 20 years away.

The committee's vote is strictly advisory for the information of the Planning Commission. The future Village bypass route, as well as other recommendations regarding the commercial development of the Village, will be discussed at a public hearing before the committee completes its report.

Committee chairman Bill Brown said he thinks a hearing may be held in December.

Strongly opposed to the northern route was committee member Bob Kvenild, who argued that it would split a quiet residential area with a high-speed limited access highway. Kvenild has long advocated a southern bypass that would cut south from Laurel Drive and run approximately parallel to the river, then swing north through the Wilson property behind the Carmel Valley Post Office and connect with Carmel Valley Road east of Esquiline.

Undecided between the two choices was committee member Almira Davis.

In discussing traffic problems in the Village, L.M. Orrett of the road department said that a road connecting Village Drive with Esquiline can probably be constructed long before the major bypass is needed. This would relieve some traffic congestion in the Village, because motorists going to or from Robles del Rio could avoid most of the commercial area.

Committee members noted that if the Wilson property, which is now C-1 (commercial) were rezoned to Planned Commercial use, a future developer could be required to build the connecting road as a condition of a use permit.

However, the committee did not vote on whether or not to recommend that the property be rezoned.

THE COMMITTEE DID agree to recommend that commercial zoning end at Esquiline Road on the east. This would release three C-1 parcels in the walnut orchard on the southeast corner of Esquiline and Carmel Valley Road, as well as a strip of C-1 beyond Rippling River, for multiple residential development.

In addition, the committee expressed the opinion that a few isolated parcels of C-1 above the Blue Sky Lodge should also be considered for apartments.

So far the committee has made no recommendation regarding the future development of an L-shaped 12 acres at the intersection of Carmel Valley Road and Ford Road. This property, divided between three owners, is a mixture of C-1 and PC zoning. It has been suggested repeatedly that this land, also, would be a logical site for an apartment development, if there were adequate commercial space available in the core of the Village.

A new perspective on commercial zoning was provided by Bill Curry of the planning department. Curry superimposed a map of the Carmel business area from Junipero to Monte Verde Steeets and from 5th to 7th streets over the present commercial area of the Village.

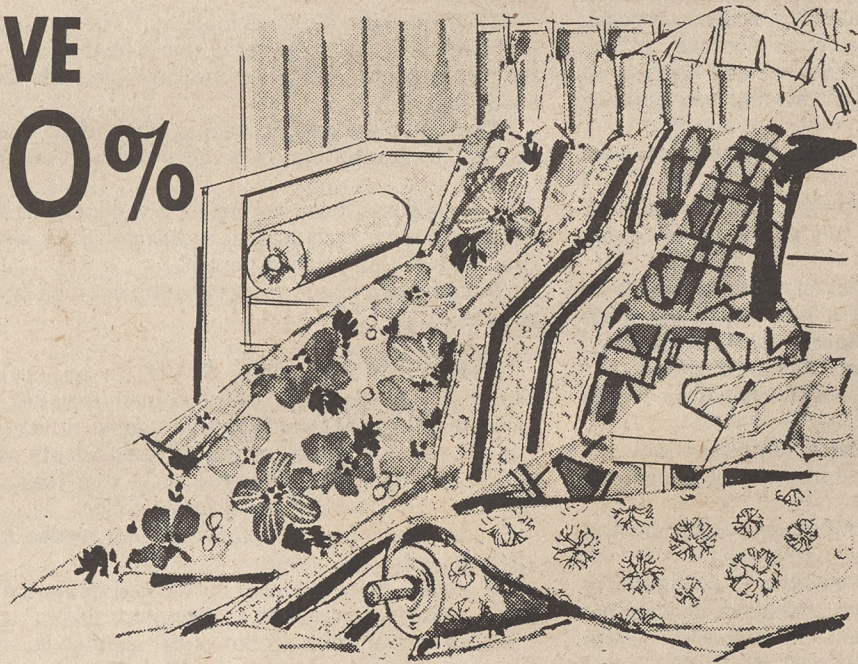

The Carmel shopping area covered the Village from Pilot Road to Esquiline, and from Village Drive to Via Contenta, an area which is almost entirely zoned for commercial development at the present time.

Then Curry superimposed a map of the Mid-Valley Shopping Center onto the open property on the corner of Ford Road and Carmel Valley Road, to indicate that that total building site is larger than the mid-Valley development.

Brown said the committee will discuss possible upgrading of the commercial zoning at its next meeting, scheduled for Nov. 27. It is also expected to reach some sort of conclusion about the Ford Road site at that time.

ALL STORES CLOSED
Thanksgiving Day
Thurs., Nov. 23rd

WE OFFER THREE TYPES OF GROUND BEEF TO MEET DIFFERENCES IN TASTE, PREFERENCE AND USE.

TYPE FAT CONTENT OBJECTIVE APPROXIMATE RANGE
Regular Ground Beef . . . 25% to 27%
Lean Ground Beef . . . 19% to 21%
Super Lean Ground Beef 13% to 15%

For example, a one-pound package of regular ground beef would contain approximately 11.7 to 12 ounces of lean meat while a one-pound package of super lean ground beef would contain approximately 13.6 to 14 ounces of lean meat. Subject to preferences of taste, buy only as lean as you really need.

The former use of the names "Ground Sirloin," "Ground Round," and "Ground Chuck" was never intended to mean that the particular cut referred to was the only source of the ground beef sold under that name.

All of our ground beef is prepared with close attention and guaranteed to assure excellent quality. However, even with the most modern equipment and technology now available, it is not yet possible to guarantee that each package will fall within the fat content objective.

ALL OF OUR GROUND BEEF CARRIES THE FAMOUS SAFEWAY GUARANTEE.

It MUST please you or we will promptly refund your money.

GOODBYES - with regrets - were said last week to a good friend and neighbor on Boronda Road, Mrs. Docia Wiley who has moved to Fresno to reside near her sons and their families. Mrs. Wiley had been a Valley resident since the early '50's when she and her husband, the late Walton Wiley, built their home on Boronda and planted a beautiful orchard and garden. New owners of the Wiley home are former Pacific Grove residents, Mr. and Mrs. Robin Burnett. Mr. Burnett has just completed work toward his doctorate at the Hopkins Marine Station where his wife, Nancy, is working toward her master's.

A BETTER CHANCE NEEDS YOU

A Better Chance Inc. of Carmel need help. Maintaining a home for ten high school boys from educationally deprived areas requires many people with a wide range of talents. If you can drive, telephone, write publicity, edit a brochure, share a treasured peninsula spot, tutor in a high school subject, or even send a birthday card to a boy a long way from home for the first time then . . . ABC can use YOU! There are 24 ABC homes scattered across the country and all of them have drawn upon the wealth of the community for the success of their program. The Carmel ABC House now needs just such support. Won't you call 624-0348 and volunteer or come to the initial ABC Auxiliary meeting scheduled on November 29th at St. Dunstan's Church. For information concerning the Auxiliary, call 659-2161 . . . We need someone just like YOU!

TULARCITOS PARENTS CLUB TO MEET

The November meeting of the Tularcitos Parents Club is scheduled for Tuesday, the 28th at 7:30 in the multi-purpose room. "Meet Your School Board" is the theme for the evening with a question and answer period following brief individual discussions. Questionnaires have been sent home via Tularcitos students requesting the following information; "What topic would you like to hear a board member talk about? What new programs or suggestions for our district or school would you like to hear discussed? What specific concerns do you presently have for our district?"

Important decision to be made during the business meeting will be how the money to be made from the Spring Carnival will be utilized. If you wish a vote on this and other important Parent Club issues be sure to send your $1.00 membership dues -- $1.00 gives voting privileges to your family.

ANGELS BY VALLEY-ITE
AT FESTIVAL OF TREES

Thanks to Mrs. A. Lee (Dorothy) Hall of La Rancheria in Carmel Valley, hand-crafted representations of St. Fiacre, patron saint of the gardener, will be available at the Fourth Annual Festival of the Trees, presented by the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art on Dec. 1, 2 and 3.

Constructed from coconut palm cloth, the original St. Fiacre has twice traveled cross-country by moving van, according to Mrs. Hall. When Mrs. Hall first volunteered to work on the Festival of the Trees, she hesitated to show St. Fiacre to fellow-workers; however, the enthusiasm displayed encouraged her to write friends in both West Palm Beach and Pensacola to secure materials to create more figures for the Christmas Creation Boutique.

A styrofoam cone, covered with brown paper, forms the basis for the figure. Burlap, wire, wreath pine, a child's top (for the head) and lastly, the coconut cloth form the figure. "I use the natural swirl formed by the coconut cloth to form the face and robe," says Mrs. Hall.

In addition, Mrs. Hall has introduced swiss straw, wet wrap material to decorate ornaments for the Festival.

The Festival will be held between 10 a.m. and 5 p.m. Friday through Sunday at the Museum, 550 Pacific St., Monterey. A special show designed for children will be held Saturday, from 11 a.m. until 4 p.m. under the direction of Mrs. James Crowley.

Mr. Roy Chamberlain, at the electric piano, will entertain at the preview invitational champagne Gala, scheduled for Nov. 30 between 6 and 8:30 p.m.

TO BE ENJOYED at Christmas -- and the years to follow -- the unique hand-crafted representations of St. Fiacre, patron saint of the gardener, created by Mrs. A. Lee Hall of La Rancheria for the December 1, 2 and 3 "Festival of the Trees" sponsored annually by the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art.

MRS. HENRY S. WILSON and Mrs. John Anderson, both of Carmel Valley, teamed up to take third place in the 9th Annual Golden Domino Tournament held last Saturday at Del Monte Lodge. The event is put on each year by the Monterey County Symphony Guild. William C. Brooks photo.

ANYONE FOR CHRISTMAS SHOPPING IN SAN FRANCISCO?

Christmas shopping in the CITY . . . for many as much of a holiday tradition as Yorkshire Pudding . . . has been given a new twist this year by St. Dunstan's Episcopal Church who invite EVERYONE to leave the driving-parking problems to the Greyline driver and join them on a charter bus tour, Sunday, December 10. The bus will leave Mid-Valley shopping center at 7:45 a.m. and arrive at Grace Cathedral in time for the 11:00 a.m. services for anyone wishing to attend. Following the service, the bus will then drive to Union Square, Fisherman's Wharf, and Ghiradelli Square, dropping passengers at which ever point they wish to spend the day -- both the Wharf and Ghiradelli have easy access to cable car connections to Union Square where passengers will board at 4:30 p.m. for the return trip home. Make your reservations SOON -- there is space for forty one -- adults only -- the $6.00 round trip ticket includes snacks both to and from San Francisco. You may telephone your reservation to St. Dunstan's 624-6646 or evenings contact Pat Griffith 659-2586 -- fees payable as you board the bus for Christmas shopping in San Francisco!

MORE OAKS & CACTI

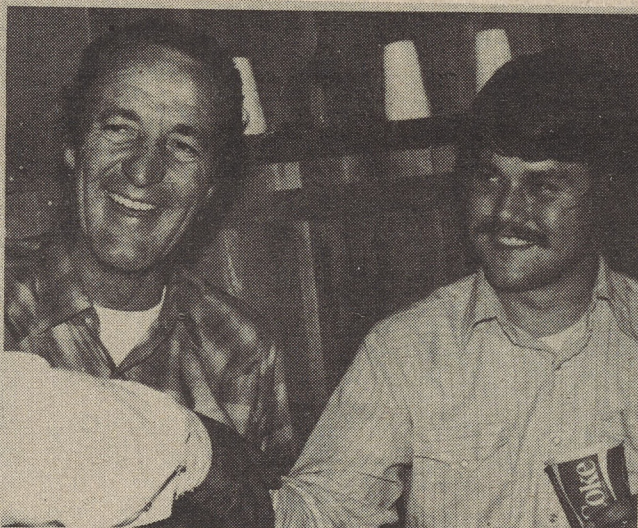

"A WEDDING IN THE SPRING" is the happy news from Harber Hill following a party last week-end announcing the engagement of Miss Viki Thorkelson of Gustine, California to Mr. Alan Harber of Carmel Valley. Viki is the daughter of Mrs. Delwin Thorkelson of Gustine and the late Mr. Thorkelson. The family formerly resided in Carmel Valley. Alan, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Art Harber grew up in the Valley, attended Carmel schools and is presently in business with his father. Barbara Eleshio assisted Dicci Harber with the party arrangements. Among the 150 attending were: Mrs. Thorkelson and sons, Lamoyne and Mark, Tom McGlynn, Dicci's stepfather from San Mateo, Art's mother, Mrs. Vive Harber, Carmel, and his brothers Vic of the Valley and David and wife, Carol of Del Rey Oaks.

ART AND DICCI HARBER, parents of bridegroom-to-be, welcome guests to Harber Hill.

Petpourri

By JUDITH A. EISNER

PEOPLE REACT oddly to worms. Not the good, garden-variety earthworm, but the bad, pet-variety parasite your dog or cat may harbor. There are folks who refuse to accept the fact that their pet may have worms and who are affronted by the mere suggestion. "Why, Frou-Frou could never have such a horrible thing!" they tell you with considerable warmth.

There are others who can't seem to acknowledge that their dog or cat is as susceptible to internal parasites as every animal is, and they boast that "they've never had a dog with worms" in the last umpteen years of having pets.

To set the matter straight, there's nothing "unclean" about having worms—a conception our overly self-conscious, overly-deodorized society seems to harbor. Some years ago, as an example, there was a genuine epidemic of pinworms in young children in a very swanky public school in Beverly Hills. Pediatricians spent hours calming overwrought mothers who cried that they didn't see how it could happen; their children were clean!

So you don't have to be dirty to have worms, and you don't have to be malnourished, either. Worms are parasites that invade their host (your dog or cat or child) through a number of intermediate stages and hosts.

WORMS ARE the most common problem in young puppies. While it is true that a great many puppies are born with worms or acquire them within the first weeks of life, all puppies do not have worms. However, since worms can cause serious illness and even death in young pups, they are not to be treated lightly.

Some of the commonest misconceptions about worms are where they come from and how to get rid of them.

1. Worms are caused by specific foods: This old wives' tale is totally false in that dogs or cats cannot get worms from eating or drinking clean, healthful foods. Milk does not "cause" worms; neither does raw meat or horse meat. If foods are contaminated with worm eggs or larvae and then eaten, they can transmit worms, but the food in itself is not a cause of worms. The only exception is the case of raw pork which may harbor trichina, the worms that cause trichinosis.

2. A dog has worms if he drags his rear on the ground. Not necessarily true. With tapeworms, the movement of worm segments around the anus may cause irritation that prompts the dog to skid his rear along. But far more likely, the dog has congested or impacted anal sacs that are bothering him and that should have attention.

3. Every puppy should be wormed routinely. This can be dangerous, especially if you use a do-it-yourself, super-market-type worm remedy. Puppies born of worm-free mothers who are reared under sanitary conditions may never have a worm in their lives. Worming should only be done after a definite diagnosis has been made from a stool specimen. However, if one puppy in a litter checks out to have worms, the entire litter should be wormed since they almost certainly have worms, too.

4. You can take care of worms yourself. Another dangerous idea. Most vets agree that if you find positive proof of worms in a dog or cat's stool and can identify the type of worm—and if you follow the package directions explicitly—it's fairly safe to attempt home-worming. But remember that vermifuges (worm-killing chemicals) are all poisonous. And remember, too, that you may think an animal has worms when he really has another problem which may be weakening him and make him extremely susceptible to the effects of worming.

5. Garlic and onions will cure worms. This is probably the oldest of the old wives' tales. Not true in that you can't use garlic to kill the worms your pet may have—but there have been some interesting studies conducted that indicate that an animal routinely fed garlic may be a less desirable host, and there is some evidence that garlic may destroy certain parasites and bacteria of the intestinal tract. However, garlic is not recommended as an anti-worm device.

6. All dogs and cats "just have worms, and a few don't really hurt." This is the opposite belief to the theory that all animals should simply be wormed routinely and is equally false and dangerous.

Although dogs are highly susceptible to worms, worm infestation is by no means an integral part of being a dog. Some dogs and cats go through life without ever having a worm.

On the other hand, if your pet has worms, however mildly, he will be better off being treated for them. Worms are harmful to an animal's health and vigor. However small the initial infestation, realize that it can become serious as the worms reproduce themselves. If worm infestation is severe enough, there may be permanent damage to the animal's organs that affect him for the rest of his life.

PETS BECOME infested with worms by eating foods infested with worm eggs (not likely if your dog isn't out scrounging in garbage cans), from contact with eggs or larvae in feces or on the ground, or from contact with another dog infested with worms. The worm larvae get into the animal by being licked off feet or coat.

One of the common varieties of tapeworm uses the flea as an intermediate host, and a dog must ingest an infected flea to get tapeworms. Another variety uses rabbits and mice as hosts (which is where a lot of dogs and cats get tapeworm).

Roundworms, or ascarids, may be passed to the unborn puppy by its mother as the worms are able to cross the placental barrier. They are by far the commonest type of worm affecting pets.

PRIVATE PARTIES ENJOY A SPECIAL TREAT at The Carriage House in Carmel Valley . . . English roast beef (New York strip) roasted to perfection and Yorkshire pudding. So if you're making holiday plans for your group, now is the time to make reservations . . . Lore reports that the calendar is filling up with private party commitments. The cozy atmosphere of The Carriage House, with its fireplace and the soft glow of candlelight, makes it an ideal spot for private parties, as well as for your own night out for dinner.

BEEF BROCHETTE, MARINATED AND HERBED, is one of the tasty selections on the menu in Eileen's Kitchen at historic Los Laureles Lodge. The succulent, bite-sized pieces of lean sirloin are skewered with fresh garden picked mushrooms, green peppers, onions and tomatoes on a bed of rice. And diners at Los Laureles view California's largest oak tree through the picture window in the dining room. Experts say this great tree was standing more than a hundred and fifty years before Columbus discovered the New World.

IF YOU HAVEN'T DISCOVERED THE AUTHENTIC RAILROAD STATION AND ENGLISH COUNTRY INN ATMOSPHERE of David Bindel's Kings Cross Station, try it one of these blustery November evenings. The glow of railroad lanterns and the roaring fire in the fireplace make it especially inviting and there are many authentic touches patterned after London's King's Cross Station. Try it for lunch and their "meal-in-itself" stationburger . . . the "double cross" happy hour from 5 to 7 PM . . . or for lounge entertainment starting at 9 every evening. New lounge lineup is Steve Uhler on Sunday and Monday; a new entertainer, Stan Stanley on Tuesday; Chuck Leary on Wednesday and Friday; and Ron Blair on Thursday and Saturday. Jam session every Sunday night.

GOURMET LUNCHESES AND DINNERS ARE SERVED at Maxim, the Valley's new restaurant located near the post office in Carmel Valley Village. If you've never had a Russian hamburger, their luncheon menu has Piroshki, perfectly seasoned beef in a shell of sourdough. Try it with Maxim's delicious hot Borscht, served with sour cream. If you prefer crepes, try their Crepes a la Reine . . . chicken and mushrooms in a cream sauce filling and decorated with fresh vegetables and marinated fruits. Others on the lunch menu are Crepes Georgia with sliced peaches and almonds or Crepes Normande with sliced apples and pecans.

THE CELEBRITY GOLF TOURNAMENT is scheduled for this Saturday and Sunday at Rancho Canada. Golfers always enjoy the beauty of these two great courses. The luncheon menu at Rancho Canada offers a specialty of the day, as well as their popular sandwich selection. An extra nice touch . . . is the glass of wine that comes with each day's specialty.

THERE'S ENTERTAINMENT TUESDAY THROUGH SUNDAY nights now at the Hatch Cover. Friends . . . that's Kathy and Bob, fill the new Sunday night entertainment slot. Their music is folk with a smattering of real down home country folk. Other groups are dropping in on Sunday night, too, and the fun starts at 9.

Glenna DeWeese to sing comic role in 'Pirates of Penzance'

Glenna DeWeese will sing the comic role of Ruth, the piratical maid-of-all-work in The Pirates of Penzance, the hilarious fun-filled operetta by Gilbert & Sullivan, to open Dec. 7 at Sunset Center as the second production of the Hidden Valley Music Seminars musical theatre season.

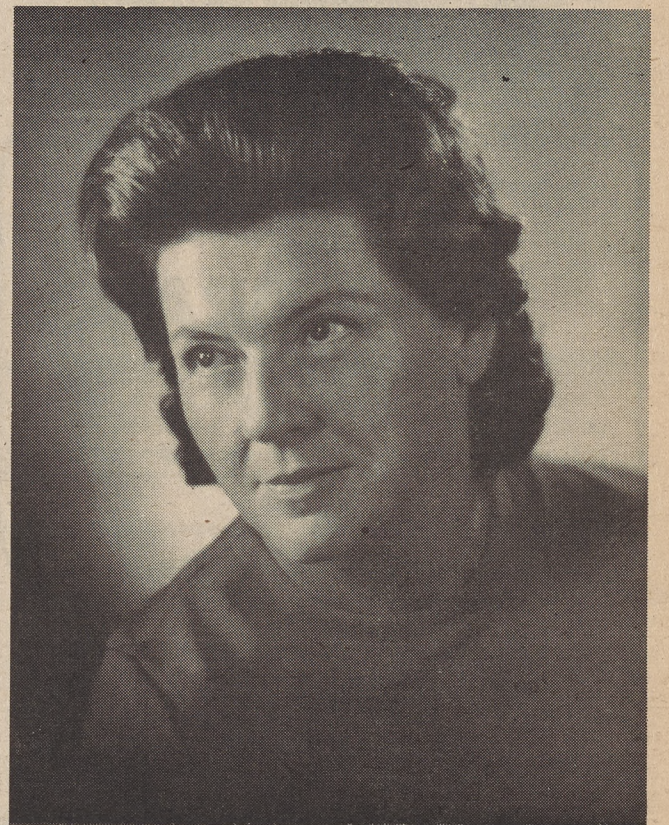

Mrs. DeWeese was educated at the University of Georgia, the University of Southern California, and has studied music and voice with Raymond Kreiner, Edwin Blanchard and with Dr. Harvey Marshall. She has appeared extensively in the southeastern United States on radio and TV performing Oratorio performances. In San Jose she was a frequent soloist with the San Jose Choral Society and a charter member of the Schola Cantorum, conducted by Royal Stanton.

Mrs. DeWeese is a noted soloist on the Monterey

Peninsula, having been heard several times this past season in recitals and as a soloist with the Monterey Symphony, the Hartnell Community Chorus in Salinas, the Choral Society and with the Bach Festival in which she has been a professional member since 1968. In April she will appear as Jezebel in Mendelssohn's Elijah to be presented by the Schola Cantorum at Flint Center, De Anza College, Cupertino.

She has also been a soloist at the Church of the Wayfarer, the Community Church of the Monterey Peninsula, Carmel and Monterey Presbyterian Church, and with the Christian Scientist Church in Carmel, Pacific Grove and Monterey. Currently, she is soprano soloist with the Bethlehem Lutheran Church.

The Pirates of Penzance will play five performances only, Dec. 7 through 10 with evening performances at 8:15 p.m. One matinee is scheduled for Sunday, Dec. 10, at 2:30 p.m.

Tickets are now on sale at the theatre office, Room 5, Sunset Center, or reservations may be made by calling 624-6911. Special discount prices are available for children, students and enlisted military on the Thursday and Sunday performances. All seating is on a reserved seat basis.

Sunset views:

'Everything under the sun'

By FRANK H. RILEY, Director
Community and Cultural Activities

BIG EVENT of the week -- one looked forward to by so many people -- is the Second Annual Homecrafters' Marketplace on Saturday. It is scheduled to take place in Sunset Center's main parking lot (San Carlos opposite 9th - just in front of the Sunset Center Theatre) and opens to the public at 10 a.m., closing at 3 p.m.

With all the recent rains, we hope for clear weather by Saturday! If postponement should be necessary, the alternate date is Sunday. We have tried to list what will be on sale, but like best the caption on a poster a friend made for us which reads: "Everything under the Sun." This covers everything, including the weather.

We do hope you will come and spend enough time to see all of the home-crafted, one-of-a-kind items that will be offered by Carmel folks who exercise their skills and talents in the creation of many, many distinctive gifts, gadgets, gizmos, gimcracks, garlands, and goodies. Carmel's Cultural Commissioners will be manning the coke and coffee booth during the sale.

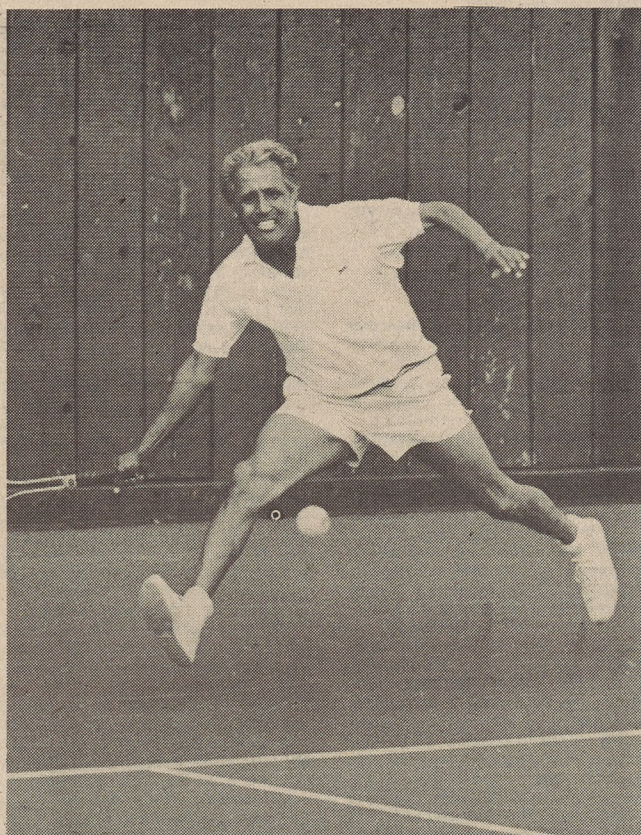

IF YOU CAN'T WAIT for Saturday to go out on the town, consider Paris of the Parisians, another exceptional Explorama film with Doug Jones, a newcomer to the adventure film series. Time is 8:15 p.m. tomorrow at Sunset Center Theatre.

I WONDER if you have become aware of the new scheduling of most concerts this year -- The Monterey County Symphony, The Carmel Music Society, and the Monterey Peninsula Chamber Music Society have all decided upon an 8 p.m. starting time. At Garrick Ohlsson's concert last week, starting had to be delayed because of so many late arrivals. I wonder what is worse: To miss the first of the program or to take the less than friendly glances of those who came on time. Maybe we had better all go continental and schedule dinner after the concerts!

ANY DAY (except Monday) from 1 to 5 p.m. you can visit the Friends of Photography gallery in Sunset Center's room No. 1. There is always a rewarding photographic show to enjoy. The current one, to remain through Dec. 31, is a group of photos by Lewis W. Hine. Admission is free and all are welcome.

Then next week a pre-holiday concert by the Monterey County Symphony at 8 p.m. on Monday, the 20th, also at Sunset Center Theatre. Appearing as soloist with the orchestra will be pianist, Jorge Suarez.

All of us here hope you will have a most happy Thanksgiving holiday. Sunset Center will be closed from Thursday, the 23rd, until Monday, the 27th, at which time our schedule resumes at its usual pace.

PANCHO SEGURA, tennis pro at Rancho La Costa in southern California, is shown in his championship match against Tom Brown of San Francisco. Segura, who learned tennis as a child to strengthen his rickets-weakened legs, played three games Sunday, since his semi-finals for the men's 45 doubles against Jack Bowker and John Williams were rained out Saturday. After winning the semi-finals with his partner, Bobby Riggs, a former U.S. and Wimbledon champion, Segura went on to win the men's 45 singles 6-2, 7-6 (tie-breaker) and then again teamed with Bobby Riggs to win the doubles championship late Sunday afternoon. Keaton classic tops film bill at MPC

Buster Keaton's College, W.C. Fields, The Little Rascals, Laurel and Hardy, Betty Boop and others will be presented in an evening of outstanding film comedy tomorrow (Friday) at Monterey Peninsula College.

The highlight of the evening's screening will be the live piano accompaniment of College, Keaton's 1927 feature-length classic.

The program is third of nine in "The Great Directors" series being presented on campus this winter by the MPC Film Appreciation Club and will be screened once at 8 p.m. in Lecture Forum 103.

Keaton, who rivals only Charlie Chaplin in his mastery of silent film comedy, stars as Ronald, a high school graduate who worships brain and deplores brawn but happens to be in love with a girl who feels the other way.

Gary Sage, noted local musician, will accompany this excellent, and very funny, example of Keaton's work on the piano using an original score. Sage has performed in several local jazz concerts and is an expert in nickelodeon and period music having many rare examples in his extensive collections.

Preceding the feature will be W.C. Fields in The Great McGonigle, The Little Rascals in The Our Gang Follies of 1938, Laurel and Hardy in Any Old Port and a Betty Boop cartoon.

Also on the bill will be Robert Benchley's classic The Sex Life of a Polyp and behind the scenes of the 1931 "Follies" with Flo Ziegfeld in Glorifiers of The American Girl.

Information about the series, which on Dec. 1 will be presenting John Ford's Tobacco Road and Dec. 8 Cecil B. DeMille's lavish spectacle of the Christ story The King Of Kings, can be obtained by contacting the student activities office at the college.

Wild turkeys likely to be scarce in Monterey County this year

Hunters planning to bag a wild turkey in Monterey County in time for Thanksgiving are being advised that their chances for success are less favorable than in past years.

The Department of Fish and Game says the extremely dry weather last summer apparently reduced the survival of young birds. Recent field surveys indicate hunters are going to have to work even harder than usual if they expect to bag one of the wily birds for their Thanksgiving table.

The Department points out to hunters looking forward to the opening of the wild turkey season on Saturday, that in Monterey County turkeys may be found in some parts of Los Padres National Forest. Sportsmen should check with rangers at guard stations to obtain any necessary fire or camping permits.

The turkey season runs from November 18 to 26 in San Luis Obispo, Monterey, Santa Barbara, Colusa, Lassen, Nevada, Shasta, Tehama, Trinity and Yuba counties as well as in parts of Glenn, Mendocino, Kern and Tulare counties. Hunters are limited to two birds a day, a total of two for the season.

Camera club plans 'visit to Vienna'

A visit to Vienna is on the agenda for the meeting of the Padre Trails Camera Club on Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the Music Room at Carmel High School. This color slide story was made last summer, with love and appreciation of charming Vienna, by Mrs. Helen Soule of Pacific Grove, who will do the narration.

Also on the program for the meeting is a color slide competition for members, specifically on night photography. Each member may enter four slides. A helpful critique will follow the judging.

Anyone with an interest in color photography is welcome to attend. For Initiating Proceedings for the West Carmel Valley Annex to County Service Area No. 43.

BE IT RESOLVED by the Board of Supervisors of the County of Monterey that:

WHEREAS, County Service Area No. 43 is located in the County of Monterey, State of California; and

WHEREAS, a resolution of this Board of Supervisors making application for the annexation of territory to County Service Area No. 43, Resolution No. 72-368, was duly filed with the Monterey County Local Agency Formation Commission on September 26, 1972; and

WHEREAS, the Monterey County Local Agency Formation Commission has assigned to the proposed annexation the short form designation of "WEST CARMEL VALLEY ANNEX TO COUNTY SERVICE AREA NO. 43". A description of the exterior boundaries of said territory proposed to be annexed is attached as Exhibit "A" and made a part hereof by this reference; and

WHEREAS, said territory proposed to be annexed is inhabited; and

WHEREAS, the reason for said annexation is to provide structural fire protection; and

WHEREAS, the Monterey County Local Agency Formation Commission has duly approved said resolution of application for annexation subject to the following terms and conditions:

1. The territory described in Exhibit A shall be designated as West Carmel Valley Annex to County Service Area No. 43.

2. The County of Monterey shall be the conducting agency for further proceedings to annex the territory described in Exhibit A, and the Board of Supervisors is directed to initiate annexation proceedings in compliance with this resolution.

NOW, THEREFORE, IT IS HEREBY ORDERED AS FOLLOWS:

1. That proceedings for the annexation of the territory, the exterior boundaries of which are described in Exhibit A and which is known as West Carmel Valley Annex to County Service Area No. 43, are hereby initiated. Said proposed annexation shall be subject to the conditions listed above and as imposed by the Monterey County Local Agency Formation Commission.

2. That the hour of 2:00 o'clock p.m. on the 5th day of December, 1972, is hereby set as the time, and date for a hearing in the Chambers of said Board of Supervisors on the proposed annexation of West Carmel Valley Annex to County Service Area No. 43.

3. Any interested person desiring to make written protest against said annexation shall do so by written communication filed with the Clerk of the Board of Supervisors not later than the hour set for hearing. A written protest by a landowner shall contain a description sufficient to identify the land owned by him; a protest by a voter shall contain the residential address of such voter.

On motion of Supervisor Smith, seconded by Supervisor Attieridge, the foregoing resolution is adopted this 8th day of November, 1972, by the following vote:

AYES: Supervisors Church, Attieridge, Tavernetti, Smith.
ABSENT: Supervisor Branson.

An Invitation To Share Our
OPEN HOUSE

November 9 through 22

In this, our finest hour, we invite you to join us in celebrating the opening of our new office at the corner of Dolores and Seventh in Carmel.

Our roots are deep here. Several of us were born on the peninsula. We think it is fitting that Charles Lunt, Jr., with much experience in and enthusiasm for the savings and loan business, has become our manager following our merger with Barney Segal's Carmel Savings . . . making us one of the top ten associations in California.

Please join us to celebrate this occasion. Our staff is looking forward to the pleasure of your company.

Cordially,

Firmin A. Gryp

How to end a drought in a hurry

Valley gets 4½ inches of rain in 6 days

The dams are full, the river is flowing, and Carmel Valley is dressed in Christmas green a full week before Thanksgiving.

After two dry winters, Valley residents got even more than they were hoping for this week as almost 4½ inches of rain transformed a drought-stricken community into what, at times, appeared to be one continuous puddle.

This boosted the season's total rainfall to 7.85 inches, far ahead of last year's meager 1.10 inch for the same date. Just one more inch will put us ahead of what we had for all of last season.

Nowhere was the dramatic transformation more obvious than at San Clemente and Los Padres dams. Tuesday morning, the water level at Los Padres dam stood at 1006 feet, 34 feet below the spillway lip.

Last season to date -- 1.10 in.

Twenty-four hours later the water level had risen 24 feet, and as of 2:30 a.m. this morning it was over the top, marking one of the earliest dates ever for the dam to be full.

San Clemente dam started spilling over its 525-foot high top at the beginning of the week. Sometime in the spring, when the heavy rains are over, flood gates will raise San Clemente another 12 feet to hold the last of the season's downpour for use next summer.

The unusually heavy and steady rain this early in the season has delighted officials of the California-American Water Company.

"This has been ideal. Just enough each day so that the ground is really becoming saturated. The underground water basin is really filling up very well," said David Fiscus, Division Manager for Cal-Am.

Cal-Am vice president Ken Fuller said that prospects for ample water for the Monterey Peninsula "appear good" at this point, "although we always like to have some rain late in the season too."

EMERGENCY CALLS

Tonia Brandt, a familiar face at the Carmel Valley Post Office, and daughter of late Postmaster Sam Brandt, was injured yesterday in an automobile accident at 11:05 a.m. on Carmel Valley Rd. at the intersection of Los Laureles Grade.

Tonia, 25 years old, was driving westbound on Carmel Valley Rd., according to the California Highway Patrol. Mrs. Barbara E. Stevens of Del Mesa Carmel, driving east, attempted a left turn onto the Grade and was struck by Miss Brandt's car.

Miss Brandt suffered facial lacerations, chest injuries and a broken right ankle. She was given first aid by the Carmel Valley Fire Department first aid crew and was taken to Community Hospital. Mrs. Stevens was treated at the scene and released.

The Fire Department sent out a truck on Sunday, although there was no fire. A car in front of the Texaco station in the Village was leaking gasoline, and the Carmel Valley stalwarts hosed down the area.

On Nov. 10 at 8:50 p.m., the first aid crew went to the scene of an auto accident at the Los Laureles Grade, but the driver did not require assistance.

On Nov. 11 at 4:04 a.m. the first aiders went to the home of Rudolph Alt on Country Club Drive where Alt suffered a possible heart attack. He was taken to Community Hospital.

And at 9:50 p.m. on Nov. 11, Mrs. John Umlin of River Road was also stricken with an apparent heart attack at the Plaza Linda restaurant. The Red Cross ambulance transported her to Community Hospital.

Supervisors postpone Odello, flood plain zoning hearings

The first real public hearing on the proposed redevelopment plan for the Odello ranch is likely to be continued from its scheduled time of 10:30 a.m. next Tuesday.

Supervisors informally agreed Tuesday that the hearing will have to be continued because an environmental impact report on the project is not yet ready. However, because the hearing has already been legally advertised, it will remain on the agenda as scheduled.

Supervisors are expected to set a new time for the hearing when it is called up.

A second reason for delaying is the illness of Fifth District Supervisor Willard Branson. Branson, recuperating from a severe siege of bronchitis with heart complications, is not expected to resume his board duties until next month at the earliest.

A second major hearing, this one on flood plain zoning for Carmel Valley, was dropped from the supervisors' agenda for Nov. 28 without a new time being set.

The hearing was originally called by Branson at the request of the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association. However, on Monday the CVPOA board wired the supervisors and asked for a continuance because of Branson's expected absence and because the board felt the matter should be heard by incoming Fourth District Supervisor Roger Poyner.

Supervisors dropped the hearing with the understanding it may be held at a future date if Branson asks that it be reset.

Carmel halts building permits

Awaits Proposition 20 clarification

Carmel's building inspection department should have some guidance from the city council now that Proposition 20 has been passed, Carmel City Attorney William Burleigh said at the council's regular meeting last Wednesday night at City Hall.

Burleigh explained that according to 20, it "does appear" no building permits can be issued because the entire city of Carmel through the commercial district is in the zone which requires permits from the regional board.

The permit area, where all new construction will have to be approved by the commission, extends 1,000 yards inland from the mean high tide line.

There is "some risk" involved in issuing building permits, Burleigh said, but the city could probably protect itself against a $10,000 fine if it requires property owners to sign a "hold harmless" agreement with the city. He added that ultimately the city would probably be excluded from the zone.

"The 'contradictory and confusing' law, Burleigh said, 'says we shouldn't issue building permits,' but that would be unfair to property owners. He repeated that the risk of being sued was small and the city could protect itself with a hold harmless agreement. Councilman Gunnar Norberg, who moved that no permits be issued until a clarification was available, said a delay for at least a short period of time would protect the city.

The council voted unanimously to direct the building department to issue no permits until there was clarification from the state or until the December council meeting (whichever came first) except for permits under the $7,500 limit the measure permits.

Several councilmen agreed with Councilman Barney Laiolo when he said, "we do need at this time with the passage of 20, a full-time planning director."

The council, with Norberg dissenting, voted to accept the recommendation of a two-man committee (Councilman Olof Dahlstrand and Planning Commission Chairman Fred Keeble) to make the planning director's position a full-time one and appointed Robert Griggs to the position.

Third annual Community Thanksgiving dinner planned

For the third year, a community Thanksgiving dinner will be held in the Exhibition Hall at the Monterey County Fairgrounds from 1-4 p.m., according to Carmel women on the committee.

These women, who include Mrs. Leland Lewis, Miss Tasha Doner, Mrs. Robert Wirtz, Mrs. Dale Eberly, and Miss Jocelyn Tyler, urge all members of the community to attend.

Guests are asked to bring their own tableware and if possible, food to share, such as fruit, cider, olives, cornbread, cakes, beans...

Those who want to bring a cooked turkey or ham or ribs or chicken are asked to call 624-2157 or 659-2714.

Mrs. Eberly and Mrs. Wirtz, the co-ordinators say "There will be no formal program and not a single speech. All the welcoming will be person-to-person. Guests will make their own entertainment."

There are no fees or admission charges they say, and any who cannot contribute to the "giant buffet" are most welcome.

For those who want to help, the women need volunteers to work on preparations -- a work party will do the decorating (with refreshments) from 2-4 p.m. Wed. afternoon. Clean-up volunteers and cash contributors for the rent of the halls (make checks to Community Thanksgiving Dinner, P.O. Box 6417, Carmel, Ca. 93921) are also needed.

People who want a ride to the dinner should call 394-7721 or 624-8062.

YOU CAN take the bathroom scales to the barn...

Feedbag

By LUCY SMITHSON

FEEDING FOR BEGINNERS

MOST PEOPLE, when you ask them how much their horse eats, will tell you so many flakes of hay and so many cans of grain. The coffee can seems to be the universal measure of grain and few know how many pounds of grain their horse is eating. Same for flakes of hay.

There has been plenty of research done into the problem of what to feed horses. The U.S. Cavalry, when it used horses, pretty well determined the cheapest feeding materials to keep horses working effectively. All the big feed companies, Purina Chows, etc., have done horse feeding projects. The big breeding farms have it pretty well figured out. And every single one of them specifies how many pounds of hay and how many pounds of grain a horse should have.

There's still some research going on as new feed products hit the market. There are investigations into trace minerals and calcium-phosphorus ratios. But the topic of how much hay and grain has been settled.

Everyone agrees that each 100 pounds of horse needs about one and one quarter pounds of hay a day and a quarter to a pound of grain, depending on how hard he's working. Of course horses don't come in 100 pound sizes—more like 1000 pound or 1200 pound sizes. A little fifth-grade arithmetic shows the horse needs 13 to 15 pounds of hay a day and three to 12 pounds of grain. Is that what you're feeding? How do you know?

Well, you could take the bathroom scales out to the barn. While holding a flake of hay, you stand on the scales and in your head subtract what you weigh. That leaves what the hay weighs. It's easier, though, if you know what the bale of hay weighs and how many days it lasts your horse.

ART HARBER showed me a slip of paper, a receipt for 404 bales of hay weighing 52,000 some pounds. Let's see...404 into 52,000...comes out to about 128 pounds per bale of hay. That's the big three-wire bale. Alfalfa and oat hay weight about the same.

Apparently, the number of flakes in a bale is pretty constant also. The flakes are made by the rammer of the baler as it operates like a big hammer to compress the hay into a bale. A knife cuts the bale of one side, the rough stubby side, and here it is easy to count the flakes in the bale.

In California, most horses eat alfalfa. Alfalfa contains about 13 percent protein as opposed to about three percent in oat hay. Protein is what turns into horse meat and, of course, horse meat is what you pay your money for...Meat on your horse's ribs.

If you buy hay locally, you'll probably get good hay. Feed stores don't stay in business by selling bad hay.

HAY ALONE doesn't make it, though. The horse needs the additional nutrients from grain.

On the farm, we used to run the grain through a crimper. Whole oats have such hard shells that many of the grains pass through a horse untouched. The crimper puts the first bite on the grain so the horse can use it.

Most people in Carmel Valley buy their grain already crimped. Mixtures of grain from feed companies are popular. There are different mixtures for feeding hard-working horses, brood mares, idle horses and so on. All the guesswork has been taken out. It tells right on the bag how much each horse needs. You can trust their figures. Can thousands of horses be wrong?

How to weight it, coffee can on the bathroom scales? Nay! You bought it already weighed. Divide into the bag weight, the recommended daily ration and feed out the bag in that number of days. Omolene, for instance, a mixture of barley, corn, molasses, chopped alfalfa and other goodies, says seven pounds a day will keep an idle horse happy. A 50 pound sack will last each horse a week.

You can't feed all the grain into a horse's tiny stomach at once. (Yes, his stomach is tiny, compared to what's got to go through it every day.) You've either got to tramp out to the barn two or three times a day or make trading arrangements with someone else.

Western art at Fitzgerald Gallery

Western and American Indian art will be on exhibit starting Saturday at the Fitzgerald Gallery in Pacific Grove.

Shows of these subjects are currently popular in New York galleries which are finding that collectors and investors are turning more and more to Western and American Indian art. Older Indian art will be shown as well as contemporary works.

Artists who will be represented in the show include Nell Bradshaw, Gerda Christoffersen, Belva Curtis, Rink Davis, Carl Funseth, Dorothy Francis, R.C. Gorman, Marilyn Mason, Ace Powell, Gerald Tailfeathers, Dan Taulbee, Sheryl Bodily, and Elmer Schock.

The Fitzgerald Gallery is located at 2108 Sunset in Pacific Grove.

INDIAN ENCAMPMENT by Elmer Schock is one of the paintings which will be on exhibit at the Fitzgerald Gallery in Pacific Grove starting Saturday during their showing of Western and American Indian Art. Schock is a native of Montana and his paintings reflect his interests in wildlife and the Old West. The show at Fitzgeralds will continue through Dec. 15.

Film-lecture on Ceylon tomorrow

The land and people of Ceylon will be portrayed in a film-lecture by Robert Leighton in Monterey Peninsula College's Discovery lecture series tomorrow (Friday) at 8:15 p.m.

Leighton will show his documentary of Ceylon first commissioned by the British Permanent Secretary for Home Affairs. The film-lecture will be in the MPC Theatre.

According to Leighton, his documentary is more "an experience in human relationships rather than a travelogue of obvious sightseeing places." His film focuses on typical villages of the country and the people of Ceylon.

Among other topics covered in the film are an investigation into the caste system; tea farming and export; a tribe of aborigine Veddhass, the earliest known inhabitants of Ceylon; ancient ruined cities; a Moslem "jungle casbah;" and other seldom-seen aspects of the country.

WOOD SCULPTOR Mel Mordaunt of Albany, Calif., works at his craft in preparation for his exhibit at 'The 39 Craftsmen Bring Christmas,' scheduled this year for Dec. 1, 2 and 3 at the La Playa Hotel. Local craftsmen and others offer a wide variety of hand-crafted merchandise at the annual event.

Space age comes to Tularcitos . . .

THIS "FLYING BATHTUB," as NASA representative William Horvath described it, could fly from Carmel Valley to Florida in three minutes. It is a model of a new supersonic space ship which NASA hopes to launch with Saturn engines. It could carry 12 passengers and make stops at orbiting space labs.

THE SPACE AGE came out of the television set and into the multipurpose room of Tularcitos School for 90 action-packed minutes yesterday morning.

While a rapt audience of fourth and fifth graders from Tularcitos and Carmelo schools oohed and aaahed, William S. Horvath, a space science education specialist from NASA's Ames Research Center, presented a program that touched on everything from the whys of space exploration to the basics of daily living far from the comforts of home.

It was Barnum & Bailey, Jules Verne and Neil Armstrong rolled into one. And the teachers were as fascinated and awed as the kids.

Horvath showed scale models of experimental planes, the Saturn rocket and Apollo spaceship, the Skylab which will be sent into orbit next spring, and a weather-reporting satellite.

He mixed math with apparent magic as he demonstrated telemetry equipment recording a micro-meteroid strike count. Only Horvath used salt sprinkled on a silicone plate charged with electricity. He also showed off a computer the size of a postage stamp.

Because Neil Armstrong was busy elsewhere, Horvath recruited Tularcitos principal Tom Williams, who donned a genuine moon space suit complete with bubble helmet.

And undoubtedly that was the first time that anyone in the room learned that astronauts manage to keep cool inside those heavy suits because their underwear is made of yards and yards of plastic tubing, "and when it gets hot, we run cold water through their underwear."

That's one bit of information nobody is likely to forget, either.

GAIL BASH and Donald Williams inspect a model of Skylab, the space laboratory which will be launched next April. Astronauts will live aboard Skylab for 28 days, conducting a wide range of scientific experiments.

A MODEL OF A MIGHTY Saturn rocket sparks an animated conversation between Josh Davidson, Suzie Brandt and Kevin Griffith following the special NASA presentation at Tularcitos School yesterday morning.

MARK STEWART from Carmelo School crowds in to get a closer look at a model of an orbiting weather station.

ON A LESS PERSONAL level, students found out that the Skylab which will be sent aloft by NASA next April, will, among other tasks, survey the world to see what is left in the way of natural resources.

"It is also going to be looking at the sun, because the spaceship Earth faces an energy crisis after the year 2000," he explained. "Unless we come up with an answer, man is certainly going to be in peril."

To conclude the special program, Horvath showed slides depicting the usefulness of space research to man on earth. Before long, he predicted, satellites may be used to direct air traffic around major airports. They have already proved useful in spotting the sources of water pollution, locating previously unseen schools of fish and pinpointing the location of diseased trees or crops.

A similar presentation will be made at Middle School on Tuesday for the benefit of students from Woods and River schools.

Afterwards, classroom teachers are provided with additional materials by NASA to follow up with further space-age studies.

HMMM...would I really want to fly on that space ship? That seems to be the question on the minds of Carmelo students Brett Briggs, Christine Winge, Jeff Grote, Ellen Harbert, Diana Lang, Jerilyn Wheeler and Tricia Thomas.

Photos by George T.C. Smith

WOW! What else is there to say about that Apollo moon ship poised atop its booster rocket?

AN OUTMODED COMPONENT of a space craft computer intrigues Tulare principal Tom Williams and Suzie Brandt. Outmoded? That's right, because the job is now done by a miniaturized version about the size of a large postage stamp.

Oakland A's et. al to play in Celebrity Tournament here this weekend

Perhaps if you're a hang-loose local golfer, competing with such movie stars as Mickey Dolenz of the Monkees or Lex Barker of Tarzan and husband-of-Lana Turner fame or Efrem Zimbalist Jr. isn't that threatening.

But even a celebrity-blase type has to be a bit excited over pitting his skill against professional athletes like Rollie Fingers, the record-setting relief pitcher for the world champion Oakland A's. What, for example, happens to your 5 handicap when Rollie pinches and twirls his moustache and the crowd sighs. And there you are, noticeably shaken, approaching the tee.

This weekend at Rancho Canada, 125 amateurs from the Peninsula (and parts as far distant as Nevada) will compete, along with 45 celebrities, in the fourth annual Celebrity Golf Tournament which will be held Saturday and Sunday. The tournament will be a 36-hole, best two-ball foursome at full handicap competition. One celebrity and three amateurs will be in each group.

Tickets for the spectators are available at $1 per day at Rancho Canada.

Just to hike the local competitors' excitement, pairings won't be released until noon today (Thursday). Spectators who want to find out starting times can call Tournament headquarters, 624-0111.

As befits a tournament in which many of the celebrities are baseball

THE CELEBRITY GOLF Tournament will utilize both the West and East courses of the Rancho Canada Golf Club this weekend. Saturday, the competitors will face the West course with the tight, narrow 14th and 15th holes on the back nine which demand the golfers shoot through cottonwoods and across the river. "We don't have water in the river now," says Pat Larkin, one of the professionals at Rancho Canada, "but at the rate we're going, we could have by this weekend." Sunday the golfers will face a similar woods and river situation on the front nine of the East course which has five river crossings. The hardest holes the golfers will meet Sunday are the long ones of the back nine, of which the 13th is considered one of the most difficult. It's a par 3 hole where the golfer shoots 230 yards across the river to an elevated green. Pat's not making any early predictions regarding a winner. "The ability of the celebrities is so varied," he says, "that a lot will depend on the help they get from the amateurs they're teamed with."

DEBBIE ELDER, Queen of the Celebrity Golf Tournament and Miss Monterey County, braves the wind and hopes the rain will stay away as she does some publicity posing to advertise this weekend's event at Rancho Canada Golf Club. Forty-five sports celebrities (as well as a few movie stars) will compete for prizes along with 125 amateurs. Tickets are $1 a day. All proceeds go to Monterey Peninsula Youth Athletic programs. (photo by Ron Gaasch).

players (Bobby Bonds, Tito Fuente, Ken Henderson of the Giants, Don Drysdale of the Dodgers, Jim Piersall, San Bando, Dave Duncan and Joe Rudi of the A's...) the proceeds are going to Peninsula youth athletic programs, including the Little League baseball teams, Young Life, the Monterey Peninsula Twirl Club and City of Seaside Recreation.

On the social side of the tournament, there will be a no-host cocktail party beginning at 6:30 p.m. at the Carmel Holiday Inn, headquarters for the celebrities.

The awards buffet will be held at Rancho Canada Sunday evening with Mike Cleary and Frank Dill of KNBR, San Francisco, acting as Masters of Ceremonies along with Fred LaCrosse of KNTV in San Jose. These men will also play golf in the tournament.

Celebrities competing are: Jim Barr, Bobby Bonds, Ron Bryant, Tito Fuente, Alan Gallagher, Russ Gibson, Ken

Henderson and Steve Stone of the San Francisco Giants and Giants' coach Joe Amalfatano.

Retired Giants Mike McCormick, Len Gabrielson and Ed Bressoud will also play.

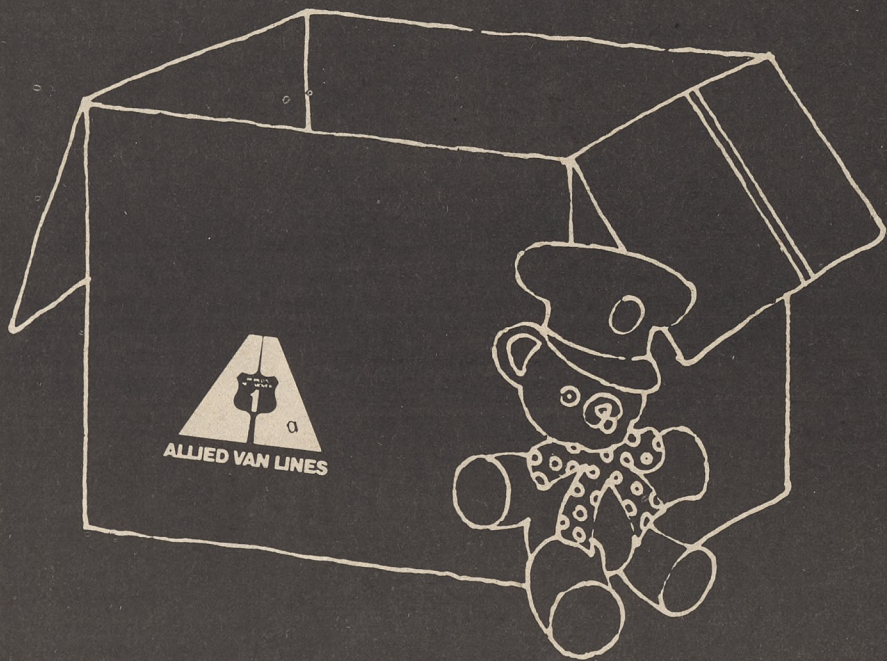

Don Drysdale, Jack Luffee and Ron Perranoski of the L.A. Dodgers will golf as will Ron Fairly of the Montreal Expos, Dario Lodigiani of the Chicago White Sox, Tommie Davis of the Baltimore Orioles, Jim Wynn of the Houston Astros and Bobby Tolan of the Cincinnati Reds.

National League Umpire Chris Pelekoudas will be in the tournament, as will Don Larson of New York Yankees Hall of Fame, Jack Christensen of Stanford University Athletics Department and Pete Vitorisi, PGA pro.

Another golfer's golfer in the tournament will be Kelly Kamura, five-time Japanese state amateur champion.

Movie personalities Guy Madison and Jack Ging will be here also.

Padres blank King City 20-0; battle for bronze shoe Saturday

It was another shut-out game for the Carmel High School Padres. This time their 20-0 victory left the King City Mustangs frustrated in the Saturday afternoon game in Carmel.

A shut-out "always makes the defense feel good," Head Coach Jason Harbert said enthusiastically.

Two of the three Carmel scores in the game were passes from quarterback Tony Lucido to defensive halfback Jerry Argust. Lucido, Harbert said, broke Danny Holman's 1962 record of 12 touchdown passes in a single season with 13 passes to date and one more game to go.

Harbert described Lucido as an "outstanding and consistent passer," who totaled "over 200 yards passing" in this game.

It was thought, Coach Harbert said, that Argust, who caught the scoring strikes, would also break a school record, untouched since 1964. Although "Jerry's been very outstanding for us," Harbert said, he added he did not think Argust could do better than the 15 or 16 touchdowns Ralph Juarez made in the 1964 season since there was only one game left to play this season.

Harbert explained that records at the school are posted, but that only the records since 1961 have been put up.

Carmel's first score came early in the second quarter when the Padres took over on downs at their own 26-yard line. After Mike Merlo gained 14 yards in two carries, Lucido hit Argust for five yards, Merlo for 23 and Argust again for 32 who ran it in for the score. Argust's kick gave Carmel a 7-0 lead.

Barely three minutes later, Lucido passed to Argust again. Argust grabbed the ball over two King City defenders and went in for a 53-yard pass play. His second kick put Carmel ahead 14-0.

Lucido kept piling up passing yardage in the second half while Steve Burdick and Merlo provided pass blocking in the backfield and Rodney Wilkinson and Mike Brock did the same on the line.

Carmel's only score in the second half came when middle guard Wade Gaasch recovered a Mustang fumble and ran it back 57 yards for a touchdown mid-way through the fourth quarter. The kick failed and the score remained at 20-0 until the end.

Gaasch, as well as Scott Green, Rod Deas, Jim Challis, Dick Steiny, Seth Warren, Mike Ford, Neil Miyamoto, Dave Hunter, Bob Poulos and Burdick played a tremendous defensive game. "All of them did a fine job," Harbert commended and added that offensive guard Scott Crabtree did a "fine job of blocking along with Wilkinson and Brock (offensive tackles)."

Harbert added that Crabtree had been a starting guard for the team and this game was his best one. "Mike Merlo," he said, "ran well again."

"It's made it easier for me," Harbert said, "because I've had tremendous help from the other coaches." He cited the "tremendous" job defensive coach Carl Merlo, offensive coach Monte Feeke have done and added that coach Poehlmann has done a great job with the offensive running backs. "These people," he said, "are all very competent coaches."

All the coaches, Harbert continued, have done outstanding work which is one reason the team has been so successful. He described the situation "as ideal for me as head coach" because such competent people were behind him.

The Padres gained 213 yards passing and 58 yards on the ground while the Mustangs couldn't get any yards in the air and only 79 yards on the ground.

King City passed eight times, completed none of the passes and had two intercepted while Lucido attempted 19 passes, completed 12 and had two intercepted, both in the second half.

Carmel tallied up 12 first downs, King City five and both teams lost one fumble each.

It was the third time this season that the Padres had not allowed the opposition to score and also marked the seventh time in nine games that an opponent had tallied eight points or less.

Only twice this year has a team scored more than one touchdown against Carmel. The Padres gave up two touchdowns and 14 points each to Gonzales and Palma.

The win put Carmel at 3-1-1 in the Mission Trails Athletic League and at 6-1-2 overall. Carmel trails Gonzales High (4-0-1) and each team has one game left.

Carmel closes the season Saturday afternoon with the traditional game against Pacific Grove in Carmel.

"This is the big week for our school," Harbert said.

The teams will play for a bronze shoe—the traditional trophy between the teams—which Pacific Grove has won for the past two years. The game, Harbert said, will be a contest for the trophy and will have behind it the "tradition of past games."

They expect to win, the coach said, and described Pacific Grove as having a "very fine football team." Pacific Grove has outstanding running backs in John Craft, Scott Maylor and Bob Shepner.

In scouting their team last Friday night, Harbert continued, he discovered that Pacific Grove quarterback Chris Pappas "has come a long way and has improved 1,000 percent."

"Now they've got balance," Harbert said, "and I imagine it will be an even game. Both teams are competent football teams and both are sound in all departments."

A WORD ABOUT SIZE AND SERVICE

A savings and loan association is only as large as the service it offers its savers! The amount of assets is not always relative to selecting the place to save your money. Although First Federal Savings is the largest federally chartered savings and loan on the peninsula, we feel that friendliness and "customer convenience" are our most important assets. Come in and talk with your neighbor, Dan Carlin, about moving your money to friendly First!
